PARISH NEWSLETTER CONSEL PLU CARN BRE

AUTUMN 2009

Chairman's Letter

The Parish Council has continued to brighten up the main road through Pool from East Hill to Barncoose with hanging baskets. Do we need to provide more and if so in which roads?

Below is advance notice of the Gardens Competition that the Council intends to run next year (2010). Please enter and come and see a photo show of all of the entries at the prize presentation evening in September 2010.

This year we will be providing more seats around the Parish, at the request of parishioners, along with new and upgraded bus shelters.

The road junction at the top of Tuckingmill Hill, where the double mini roundabout is now, will be transformed into a light controlled cross roads with light controlled pedestrian crossings. After this is installed please let us know your views and comments. Is it better or worse than now?

Do you know of any person who works tirelessly for an organisation or charity? They are the unsung backbone of the local community. Please ring or write to me with information of any person that you consider should be recognised and a little bit about them.

Please do not forget our Remembrance Service on Sunday, 1st November 2009 at 11.00 a.m. and our Carol Service on Tuesday, 1st December 2009 at 6.00 p.m. Finally if I can help with any Parish issues please do not hesitate to contact me.

Heartlands in Pool is planned to transform Cornwall's most derelict urban area into a truly inspirational cultural landscape. Essential clearance work is now well underway to prepare the site for the major works which will be on going throughout 2010. Cornwall Council is delivering the £29.5million project with £22.3m funding from the Big Lottery Fund's Living Landmarks programme and additional funding from Cornwall Council and The Homes and Communities Agency, the National Housing and Regeneration Agency for England.

Heartlands will create a unique setting for a range of activities. Specific elements of the project include a new park and gardens area, one of the largest adventure playgrounds in Cornwall, exhibition and event areas, artist studios, a restaurant and community building.

Heartlands team up with local artist to create eco friendly belly boards

After months of preparation, students from Pool Business and Enterprise College took to the waves at Gwithian Beach on individually created belly boards inspired by life in Cornwall, and made out of recycled wood.

Panels of un-used wood, which were collected from Heartlands at Robinson's Shaft in Pool by the year nine students, and were transformed into eco-friendly belly boards. The boards were illustrated with images chosen by the pupils, which depict stories gathered from their family members and local residents about life in Pool.

The project, named 'Lost Words, Found Objects', involves working with the local community to help develop the project and inspire the artists and designers working at Heartlands. The project was led by local artist Ben Cook. The event at Gwithian Beach named 'Exhibition in the Sea' gave pupils the opportunity to showcase their boards both in and out of the water.

The Lost Words, Found Objects project was an exciting opportunity for pupils of Pool Business and Enterprise College to get involved with Heartlands and have learnt that sustainable living can be fun. Raw materials, which were no longer of use on the Heartlands site have now been transformed into fantastic original belly boards for the pupils to surf on and will later be exhibited at Heartlands for all to see.
