

Chairman's Report

Another three months have passed since our last newsletter and our gardens are now in the grip of winter, but this was not the case in July when we had our garden competition.

This was our first competition for local gardens and it was a great success as you can see from the photographs in the centre of the newsletter.

We would like to thank all those who entered and to say that we will be running the competition again next year with a wider range of categories for more households or individuals of all ages to enter. Watch our for the entry forms in the spring of 2011.

Do you want to be a Councillor?

After Christmas we will be Co-opting a Councillor for the Four Lanes Ward onto the Parish Council. If you are interested please contact the office or myself in January 2011 and we will tell you the procedure you have to follow.

A lot of work is now going on at the Heartlands Project which is now moving quickly in the construction phase. You can see works for access roads at Trevenson Road and Dudnace Lane now progressing. If you would like a tour of the Project or get more information please contact Kirsty Davies on 01209 722323 or kirsty.davies@cornwall.gov.uk

Finally Christmas will soon be upon us so on behalf of all the Councillors and staff of Carn Brea Parish Council, I wish you a safe, happy and healthy Christmas and New Year.

Cllr. Malcolm Moyle
Chairman 01209 214381

Construction moving on swiftly and web cameras just launched

Work at Heartlands is moving on at a pace as you may notice when passing the site. Lots of work is currently taking place, which includes the Robinson's Shaft headgear which is now completely covered in scaffold ready for its renovation and conversion in to an exhibition centre. The foundations of the community building have started to be laid and the road which forms the boundary of the site is also well on its way.

Two web cameras have been installed on site so progress can be followed daily. The web cameras are positioned on the Robinson's Shaft buildings and on the land where the community building, artist studios and apartments will be built. Visit our website to take a look at our web cameras and also follow our blog which we update weekly www.heartlandscornwall.com

Winner of the Biodegradable Balloon Race is announced

To launch construction work at Heartlands 800 students from local schools participated in the 'Heartlands Biodegradable Balloon Race' on July 23rd this year. After 3 months and a total of 33 balloons being reported found in Jersey and France, one single balloon made the 712 mile trip to Germany, which quickly took the lead.

The winning balloon belonged to local student Roxanne which was found in a small town east of Strasbourg. Roxanne is a student at Pool Business and Enterprise College, who has been studying Heartlands in her geography class; looking at renewable energy sources that will power the project.

Roxanne was presented with a new bike to reward her balloon travelling all those miles. Roxanne came on site to Heartlands to collect her bike along with her friend Shauna and teachers from Pool Business and Enterprise College, Mr Brooks and Mrs Boase.

Guided tours

Heartlands offer regular guided tours for those who would like a closer look at the project.

The next tours are as follows:

Friday 12th November at 2pm

Friday 26th November at 2pm

Friday 10th December at 2pm

If you would like to book your place on a tour please contact the Heartlands office on 01209 722323 or email kirsty.davies@cornwall.gov.uk

A MESSAGE FROM GEORGE EUSTICE

One of the things that persuaded me to stand for election earlier this year was seeing the work that MPs do in their constituencies to help people deal with specific problems in their daily lives. You can't always solve the problem, but you can always try, give advice and lend a helping hand. When you do succeed, it makes the job worthwhile. I have held a surgery to meet people and deal with problems that they have just about every Saturday since I was elected in May. It is a good way of staying in touch with the challenges that people face.

I think that one of the problems in society today is the relentless growth of bureaucracy in recent decades. It sometimes seems so hard to get apparently simple things done. People find themselves passed from one agency to another; "held in a queue" on the phone; being told they have the wrong form, are in the wrong place or need to call a different number and being told different things by different people. There seems no shortage of ways to lodge a complaint but actually getting things changed is harder. We have all experienced it in our daily lives and it gets very frustrating.

I have heard it argued that such complexity is a fact of modern life and can't be changed. But why is it? The way people live their lives today is not that different to the way it was in the past. Perhaps we just need to change our mindset and make a conscious effort to reverse the trend because government doesn't have all the answers.

Getting to grips with this bureaucracy is one of the aims of the new government. If we want people to take more responsibility for their lives, their families and their communities then they need to feel that making an effort will make a difference. If people feel that the decisions that affect them have already been taken somewhere else anyway then they just won't bother.

We also need to rebuild local institutions and replace bureaucracy with accountability. For instance by giving parents and local voluntary groups the ability to set up new schools; letting schools break free from local authority control; giving people the ability to elect a Police Commissioner to set priorities for their police force; giving local people the right to take over local facilities like post offices and community centres and getting voluntary groups to step in where government has failed to deal with difficult problems like welfare dependency.

These are potentially bold plans, but they need active people to play their part too. It is likely to be an evolution rather than an overnight revolution because it will take time for people to realise that they can make a difference and get back into the habit of doing their bit. But we have to start somewhere. In the meantime, I will be holding a surgery most weeks to try to help people wade through the treacle of government bureaucracy. So do get in touch if there is anything I can help with!
